Dear Parishioners: “The Word became flesh, and dwelt among us.” Alleluia! God bless you and your family this Christmas, with the knowledge of the closeness of God in our lives, the love of the Holy Family, the wonder of the angels, shepherds & Magi. Welcome home to all who are returning to St. Boniface & St. Peter’s! May every gathering of our extended families be blessed with peace this holy season. In his little book The True Meaning of Christmas, Fulton Sheen made the astute observation that Christ our Lord appeared to the people with no books (the shepherds) & the people with many books (the Magi): he didn’t appear to people with one book. I pray that the richness of the Incarnation will be discovered anew in the simplicity of our lives; our prayer, acts of caritas and the many new ways that God calls us to live as a faith community within our Church today. As we gather to celebrate the richest traditions of our families and faith, may we ever be open to the Spirit’s call to grow in our appreciation of the sacred mysteries, and witness to them in new and powerful ways. My thanks to all within the parish who will make our celebrations over the Christmas season so joyful. May the Light of Christ dawn in your heart this day! God bless.

Fr. Matt
